The program aimed to strengthen knowledge, counselling skills, and practical competencies related to breastfeeding among healthcare professionals and community health workers. The CME included five interactive sessions addressing emotional, ergonomic, nursing, and clinical aspects of breastfeeding, along with a hands-on workshop. Experts from Obstetrics & Gynaecology, Physiotherapy, Nursing, and Community Medicine shared evidence-based practices. An awareness street play by OBGY interns highlighted common misconceptions and breastfeeding challenges. A practical workshop for ASHA and Anganwadi workers focused on identifying and managing common breastfeeding problems. The program received enthusiastic participation and positive feedback for its multidisciplinary approach, practical content, interactive sessions, and community-oriented focus. The CME enhanced participants' knowledge, practical skills, and confidence in supporting breastfeeding mothers, while reinforcing the importance of early initiation, effective counselling, family support, and coordinated multidisciplinary care.
