12.	Brief summary of the event in around 100 words (purpose, conduct, feedback, impact, suggestions)	In recognition of World Breast Cancer Awareness Month, the Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology organized breast examinations for all patients attending the Gynecology OPD throughout the month. Once a week, a health talk was conducted to educate patients on the importance of self-breast examination and the necessity of mammography for women over 40. Postgraduate students led these talks, with faculty members emphasizing the benefits. Additionally, any questions related to breast health were addressed. All women visiting the OPD received a breast examination and were taught how to perform self-examinations. Almost 300 patients were examined during the month. The initiative was well-received by the patients.
